WELCOME TO METRO US

NIKKI M. MASCALI, REPORTER

As the investigation into Tuesday's terror attack in lower Manhattan continues, Mayor Bill de Blasio, NYPD Commissioner James O'Neill and Gov. Andrew Cuomo urged New Yorkers to remain resilient — and expect increased security across the city and for Sunday's still-on NYC Marathon. Stay informed at metro.us.

NEW YORK CITY TERROR SUSPECT CHOSE HALLOWEEN IN HOPES OF KILLING MORE

Terror suspect Sayfullo Saipov asked for an ISIS flag to be displayed in his New York City hospital room, according to a criminal complaint filed Wednesday. Police said Saipov, 29, hit several innocent people with a rental truck on Tuesday in what officials said was a deliberate act of terror. The criminal complaint also said Saipov waived his Miranda rights and said he "felt good about what he had done." The Uzbek national reportedly left a note in his truck pledging allegiance to ISIS. He also told investigators he considered displaying the ISIS flag in the front and back of the pickup truck, but was worried it would draw too much attention. The complaint went on to say Saipov specifically chose Halloween for the attack date because he thought "there would be more civilians on the street." Originally, Saipov planned to strike people on the West Side Highway then head to the Brooklyn Bridge to continue the attack. He told investigators he practiced maneuvering his truck for a few weeks. Officials said they recovered nearly 100 videos from his phone; some showed instructions on how to build a bomb while others showed beheadings. Saipov faces charges of providing material to support a foreign terrorist organization (ISIS) and using a motor vehicle as a weapon.

MATERIALS SEIZED IN 2011 BIN LADEN RAID RELEASED

3 A computer recovered in the 2011 U.S. special forces operation that killed Osama bin Laden contained a video collection that included kids' cartoons, several Hollywood movies and three documentaries about himself. The list of the videos was included in the release by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency of nearly 470,000 files found on the computer seized in the May 2, 2011, U.S. raid on the al Qaeda founder's hideout in Abbottabad, Pakistan. It is the fourth tranche of materials taken from the walled compound where bin Laden and his family lived to be made public by the U.S. government since May 2015. Materials that still have not been released are being withheld because they could harm national security, are blank, corrupted or duplicate files, are pornographic or are protected by copyright, said a CIA statement.

COURT DOCUMENT SHOWS MANAFORT WEALTH

4 Paul Manafort, former campaign manager for President Donald Trump, had three U.S. passports, millions in assets and ties to Russian oligarchs, according to federal court documents after his indictment on tax fraud and money laundering charges. Manafort and associate Rick Gates pose a significant flight risk because of the serious nature of the charges, the strong evidence of guilt, their wealth and "their history of deceptive and misleading conduct," federal prosecutors said in a filing Tuesday in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. Manafort, 68, and Gates, who also worked on Trump's campaign, pleaded not guilty on Monday in a 12-count indictment, ranging from money laundering to acting as unregistered agents of Ukraine's former pro-Russian government.

‘Now is not the time to live in fear’: NYPD commissioner

City officials shared new details about the terror attack by Sayfullo Saipov in lower Manhattan and urged New Yorkers to remain resilient

The day after Sayfullo Saipov drove a rented truck down a bike path on the west side of lower Manhattan, killing eight people and injuring 12 others, city officials urged New Yorkers to remain vigilant — and fearless — in the face of terrorism.

“Now is not the time to live in fear, to be fearful. It’s time to be strong as we always are,” NYPD Commissioner James O’Neill said at a news conference Wednesday morning.

Mayor Bill de Blasio echoed that sentiment.

“This was an attack on the United States of America and New York and our people. It was the definition of terrorism,” de Blasio said. “This was an attack on our values, an effort to break our spirit, but it failed.”

Despite its tragic outcome, Gov. Andrew Cuomo, who called Saipov a “depraved coward,” agreed the attack was unsuccessful at its core.

“The effort was to disrupt us, to terrorize us, to create mayhem. It failed,” he said. “The Halloween parade was a beautiful example of the failure of the attempt.”

Just hours after the attack, New York’s annual Halloween parade went on as planned, with more than one million people — and a ramped-up police presence — in attendance. New Yorkers can expect to see increased patrols across the city, NYPD Chief of Department Carlos Gomez said.

“You’ll see a lot more officers on trains, on platforms,” he said. “They should expect more bag checks at more stations, more explosive-detecting canines at stations.”

As for the New York City Marathon on Sunday, Gomez said the NYPD will have its “most ever” deployment, with more rooftop observation teams, sand trucks, blocker vehicles and cops in civilian attire mixing with the expected 2.5 million spectators. There will also be a “large number” of canines and counterterrorism officers and helicopter patrols.

“The effort was to disrupt us, to terrorize us, to create mayhem. It failed.”

Who is Sayfullo Saipov, the NYC terrorist? Here’s what we know

Sayfullo Saipov, 29, hit multiple victims with a rental truck Tuesday afternoon, killing eight people and injuring at least 12 others.

Saipov was in custody at Bellevue Hospital on Manhattan’s East Side after being shot and arrested by police. Saipov is reportedly an Uzbek citizen who has been in the United States on a green card since 2010. His ID said he was from Tampa, Florida.

Saipov moved to the U.S. about five or six years ago, Dilnoza Abdusamatova told The Washington Post. Abdusamatova said he stayed with her family in Cincinnati for his first two weeks in the U.S.

SAIPOV WAS LIVING IN PATERSON, NEW JERSEY, JUST ABOUT 20 MILES FROM NYC, AT THE TIME OF THE ATTACK.

Saipov headed to Florida to start a trucking business, Abdusamatova said, adding that she believes he got married and may now have two children.

Saipov eventually moved to Paterson, New Jersey, just about 20 miles from New York City, where he became an Uber driver. An official of the ride-hailing service told The New York Times that Saipov had passed its background check.

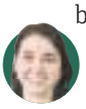
Gov. Cuomo increases security measures in wake of terror attack

Security measures are being increased across the city and beyond.



KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
@kristindakota
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

In the wake of Tuesday's terror attack in New York City, in which eight people were killed and at least 12 others injured, Gov. Andrew Cuomo has announced that security measures across New York will be enhanced.

On Tuesday night, Cuomo also ordered the spire of One World Trade Center to be lit up in red, white and blue in honor of the freedom and democracy he said that New York City stands for.

Cuomo has directed state agencies including the New York State Police, the National Guard, the Division of Homeland Security and Emergency Services, the Metropolitan Transportation Authority and the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey to increase their security presence.

Security measures will be amped up at "high-profile" locations, including airports, bridges, tunnels and mass transit systems, and more security personnel will be deployed to high-density areas like transportation hubs and large public gatherings.

These are precautionary measures, Cuomo assured, and not a sign of a larger, looming threat.

"I am deeply saddened by the attack on New York, and I join all New Yorkers in mourning the innocent lives we lost [Tuesday]. New York is an international symbol of freedom and democracy, and that makes us a target for people who oppose our way of life," Cuomo said. "I want to reassure all New Yorkers that at this point we have no evidence that today's attack is part of a wider plot involving more than one individual. Out of an abundance of caution, we are stepping up security measures at high-profile locations and large public gatherings while the investigation continues."

The New York State Police, as well as the National Guard, have been in contact with federal officials and local law enforcement like the NYPD.

Local officials have been in touch with the Division of Homeland Security and Emergency Services and the DHSES Watch Center has "entered enhanced monitoring mode and has increased monitoring of various large public gatherings," as a precaution, according to the governor's office.

Port Authority Police are also on heightened alert at all bridges, tunnels, rails and at the World Trade Center and other locations. Officers will be on increased patrols and will be checking bags, buses, trucks and trains.

Officials are reminding travelers to stay vigilant and to report any suspicious activities.

The MTA Police Department has also increased its patrols and surveillance, including increasing both uniformed and plainclothes officer presence at Penn Station, Grand Central Terminal and other spots along the Metro-North and Long Island Rail Road networks.

"Police canine teams and units with heavy weapons will provide extra protection as well as a noticeable sign of increased security," the governor's office said. "Railroad customers will also see surge patrols, increased step-on/step-off patrols of trains, and random bag checks at various locations."

State police and National Guard members have been assigned to high-profile MTA locations for more than a year, officials said, and will continue to help secure such areas.

As always, New Yorkers are reminded that if they see something, say something. Reports can be made to the Counter Terrorism Center at the New York State Intelligence Center through the terrorism tip line at 1-866-SAFENYS (1-866-723-3697) or by email at ctcenter@nysic.ny.gov.

There's also a See Something, Send Something app available for smartphones that can be downloaded at ny.gov/programs/see-something-send-something.

Following Tuesday's terror attack, there will be an increased security presence throughout New York City and elsewhere. GETTY IMAGES

Trump calls for ending visa program after NYC attack, blasts Democrats

The program has been criticized as being vulnerable to fraudsters and because it can allow in low-skilled immigrants.

President Donald Trump seized on the fatal New York City truck attack to press his call on Wednesday for tighter immigration measures to prevent terrorism, asking Congress to end the visa program under which the Uzbek immigrant suspect entered the United States.

Trump also said he would consider sending the suspect, identified by authorities as Sayfullo Saipov, to the prison at the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, which his Democratic predecessor Barack Obama tried but failed to shut.

The Republican president tried to assign some blame for the attack to the Democrats' Senate leader, Chuck Schumer, who struck back in a speech on the Senate floor by saying that Trump should stop "politicizing and dividing America" at times of national tragedy.

The Department of Homeland Security said Saipov entered the United States in 2010 through the so-called diversity visa program, designed to provide a path to U.S. residency for citizens from countries with historically low rates of immigration to the United States.

Trump reprised what has been his stance as a White House candidate and as president — that tougher immigration laws should be a first line of defense against such attacks.

"I'm going to ask Congress to immediately initiate work to get rid of this program," Trump told reporters at the White House.

"We have to get much tougher," he said. "We have to get much smarter. And we have to get much less politically correct. We're so politically correct that we're afraid to do anything."

Schumer helped create the diversity visa program in 1990 when he was a member of the House of Representatives, but he was also a member of a group of lawmakers who crafted a bipartisan immigration bill in 2013 that would have done away with the program. That bill was passed by the Senate but killed by the Republican-led House.

"We're so politically correct that we're afraid to do anything."
President Trump

The program, via a lottery system, selects up to 50,000 people per year who receive U.S. visas, and eventually permanent residence in the United States. Those selected undergo U.S. security checks before being allowed to immigrate.

"The terrorist came into our country through what is called the 'Diversity Visa Lottery Program,' a Chuck Schumer beauty. I want merit based," Trump wrote on Twitter.

Trump on Wednesday also renewed his call for a "merit-based" visa system and for ending "chain migration" in which a legal immigrant may apply for relatives abroad to come in as well. Trump said there were "23 people that came in or potentially came in" with Saipov.

On Wednesday, he accused congressional Democrats of blocking immigration legislation that would make the nation safer.

"We have a lot of good bills in there. We're being stopped by Democrats because they're obstructionists. And honestly, they don't want to do what's right for our country," Trump said. REUTERS

NYPD identifies eight victims of the New York City terror attack

Eight people were killed in a terror attack in Manhattan on Tuesday, including friends visiting from Argentina and a woman visiting from Belgium.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
@kristindakota
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

The eight victims of Tuesday's terror attack in lower Manhattan in which a man plowed a truck down a bicycle path have been identified by NYPD and include five friends visiting New York City from Argentina, a woman visiting from Belgium, a New York City man and a man from New Jersey.

The friends from Argentina were celebrating the 30th anniversary of their graduation from a polytechnic high school, Argentina's Ministry of Foreign Affairs said in a statement.

The victims were identified as Hernán Mendoza, 47; Diego Angelini, 47; Alejandro Pagnucco, 47; Ariel Erlij, 48; and Hernán Ferruchi, 47 by the Consulate General of Argentina in New York. Martin Marro, a sixth friend, was injured in the attack. As of Tuesday night, he was recovering at New York-Presbyterian Lower Manhattan Hospital.

The other victims are Anne Decadt, 31, from Belgium; Nicholos Cleves, 23, from New York City, and Darren Drake, 32, from New Milford, New Jersey.

The Argeninian men were part of a larger group of 10 people, according to Argentinian newspaper La Nacion. They were all from Rosario, Argentina, a port city along the Parana River that is about 300 miles northwest of Buenos Aires.

The men rented bicycles Tuesday afternoon and were exploring the city when the attack occurred, according to La Nacion. Erlij, 48, was a well-known businessman in Rosario, the paper reported, and was the one who organized the trip. Officials from their high school released a statement on Facebook expressing their "most sincere condolences to the families of the victims of the attack in New York City," all who were from the class of 1987.

FIVE OF THE EIGHT VICTIMS OF TUESDAY'S TERROR ATTACK IN LOWER MANHATTAN WERE FROM ARGENTINA.

Argentina President Mauricio Macri said on Twitter that he was "Deeply moved by the tragic deaths of this afternoon in NY."

The deputy prime minister and foreign affairs minister for Belgium, Didier Reynders, also made a statement on Twitter confirming that a Belgian national died in the attack.

"I am deeply saddened to announce a Belgian victim in Manhattan — I express my condolences to the family and friends," she wrote.

Local Belgian newspapers reported that Decadt was from Staden, a village of about 11,000 people. She was on a trip with her two sisters and mother, according to Het Laatste Nieuws.

Three other Belgians — a family of a mother, father and son — were also injured in the attack, the paper reported.

About a dozen people were injured in total, officials said. That included two New York City school staff members and students, according to a spokesperson for Schools Chancellor Carmen Fariña's office.

A Home Depot rental truck that struck multiple people on a bike path is seen with New York City first responders at the crime scene in lower Manhattan.

Donald Trump Jr. took away this girl's Halloween candy to teach her a 'lesson' on socialism Twitter taught Donald Trump Jr. a lesson on Halloween.

The president's eldest son was trying to teach his young daughter a lesson in socialism, but we'll just say that lesson backfired. Spectacularly.

"I'm going to take half of Chloe's candy tonight & give it to some kid who sat at home. It's never to early to teach her about socialism," he tweeted.

The 6:53 p.m. post was paired with a photo of his young daughter and what appeared to be her haul of Halloween candy after trick-or-treating. Chloe was dressed as a police officer.

Within hours, his post had more than 72,000 comments, mainly from people who wanted to school Trump Jr. on socialism, Halloween and the difference between "to" and "too."

"As a teacher, I can't help but say that this is wrong on so many levels. Gosh how is this even possible to brag about on Twitter?" tweeted @maelagam.

Clearly, people had a problem using a child to make political points. Also, Trump Jr. spelled "too" wrong while trying to teach a lesson, so there's that.

Then there's Trump Jr.'s definition of socialism.

Rather than socialism — a political system defined by the government controlling the means of production and the distribution of goods and services — it appears Trump Jr. was actually talking about good old-fashioned sharing.

"Imagine thinking that teaching your child to share is bad," tweeted @Hermit_Hwarang.

Trump Jr. seemed to be trying to make some point about high taxes on the rich to share their wealth with the poor, but our own capitalist system already depends on the wealthy subsidizing the poor by way of the graduated income tax — something Twitter users were also all too quick to point out.

"My man, 'socialism' was her getting that free candy in the first place. You taking half for reasons she can't understand is capitalism," @Bearpigman tweeted.

NYC MARATHON

NYC Marathon still on, ceremonial event off after terror attack

While the TCS New York City Marathon will still go on as planned Sunday after Tuesday's terror attack in Lower Manhattan, its blue line painting ceremony scheduled for Wednesday did not.

"In light of the tragedy in Lower Manhattan, and with respect to the victims, their families and our city agency partners, we will be postponing our ceremonial Blue Line Painting and Faces of the Marathon media events originally scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 1," marathon officials said in a statement.

The painting outlines the 26.2-mile course that more than 50,000 runners are expected to tackle Sunday while an estimated 2.5 million spectators look on.

A marathon expo that starts Thursday will still take place at the Jacob K. Javits Convention Center, race officials said, according to Fox 5.

The "marathon will go on because New York will go on," Gov. Andrew Cuomo said at a news conference Wednesday morning.

The marathon police detail will include rooftop observation teams and sand trucks, blocker vehicles and cops in civilian attire as well as a "large number" of canines, counterterrorism officers and helicopter patrols, NYPD Chief of Department Carlos Gomez said.

The extra measures that will be in place Sunday come after the deadliest terror attack in New York City since 9/11.

FIT opens new space for emerging fashion designers

The Design Entrepreneurs Collaborative offers an affordable space to operate, meet potential buyers and join forces with fellow designers.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
@MetroNewYork
nikki.mascali@metro.us

For the past four years, the Fashion Institute of Technology's Design Entrepreneurs NYC (DENYC) has been helping up-and-coming fashion designers create the businesses of their dreams, from teaching them strategy, branding and financials and setting them up with industry mentors to giving them the chance to win $50,000 to $100,000 for their young companies.

Now, FIT's "mini MBA" program is going one step further with the official launch of the Design Entrepreneurs Collaborative, a 5,400-square-foot workspace in the center of New York City's Garment District. The space gives alums of both FIT and DENYC the chance to operate out of an affordable space, meet with potential buyers and retailers and hold mini-marts during fashion market weeks.

The Collaborative is split into eight showrooms that rent for $900 each, a larger one that costs $1,200 and space for presentations, sample sales, photo shoots and more. The showrooms carry a one-year lease with a second-year option.

"I think the best part about this is that these designers have a chance to be with other designers," Christine Helm, coordinator of Enterprise Studies and Digital Design at FIT, told Metro at the official opening. "It's so difficult to be an entrepreneur of any kind — you're off on your own and isolated. Here, they're not competing with each other, and they love being together, yet they have their separate reserved space."

Being with other designers inspires Kandice Pelletier, whose namesake luxury swimwear company, which counts five consecutive Miss Americas among its clientele, has been operating out of the Design Entrepreneurs Collaborative since March.

"There's no competition — we've been able to share resources, stylists and help each other," the former Miss New York and Radio City Rockette said.

But she's also seen firsthand the benefits on the business side, too.

"I've been able to double my business and start a brand-new activewear line we're really excited about," said Pelletier, a DENYC alum. "The growth and having a place for people to come just gives the validity to the brand."

For Amanda Campbell, another DENYC alum, her space showcases her jewelry company Slight, whose pieces are often inspired by science fiction, and her newly launched engagement ring line, Momo.

"This space has been amazing, but Design Entrepreneurs is like a mini fashion MBA, and that really helped me dissect my business and focus on what's working and what's not working," she said.

For Design Entrepreneurs Collaborative's "resident shoemaker" Noah Waxman, the space "represents the next piece of building a fashion brand."

Applications are currently being accepted for the next DENYC program, which runs from January to June. For more info, visit fitnyc.edu/designentrepreneurs.

Demand Soars At NYC Medical Clini

Can This Medical Technology Possibly Eliminate Or

The Advanced Medical Treatment Every Back & Neck Pain Sufferer Needs To Kno

NYC Pain MD is a medical clinic with two locations in New York City that has made a name for itself by treating the worst cases of back or neck pain.

Here is what every back and neck pain sufferer who has failed to respond to other treatments and does not want surgery should know about one of the best treatment options available today for severe back and neck pain including when, why and where you should consider this treatment to get maximum results.

If you suffer with back, neck or nerve pain, you have probably already tried many treatments ... especially countless pain medications.

Experienced doctors understand that even though pain medications such as anti-inflammatory pain pills are part of the recommended early treatment plan for back pain... they are rarely the answer.

In most cases they have minimal, short term results (if any) and have a laundry list of potential side effects. Some being serious and even life threatening.

Are there any better options?

Thankfully, advancements in science and technology come extremely fast. And now there is very good option to help relieve the pain.

An option that a lot of back and neck pain sufferers may have never heard of before.

Before we get into these treatments, please understand this...

NYC Pain MD is a REAL medical clinic that has treated the worst cases of back pain. Patients travel from all over to be treated at one of their clinics for all sorts of joint and muscle pain because they want the best medical treatments available.

What you are about to discover is a REAL medical treatment. Not some miracle cure you see on infomercials or on the internet.

Know this fact: There is no one treatment that will help every case of back pain. And we cannot guarantee this treatment will work for you. But this treatment has already helped countless back and neck pain sufferers who had given up hope. I bet many just like you.

What is this treatment? It's called...

Radiofrequency Neurotomy

"Radiofrequncy Neurotomy" is often referred to as RF for short. Just what is "RF".

RF is a procedure that is based on the concept that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

There are many nerves around your spine and one of their jobs is to sense PAIN.

Radiofrequency waves are delivered to these nerves under advanced imaging to "block" the nerves and slow down the pain

Two procedures are performed. First, a test, diagnostic "Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function.

If this first "test" procedure is successful, the Radio Frequency Neurotomy is scheduled and performed for longer term relief.

What Results Can You Expect?

Like all real medical procedures... results vary for individual patients. No good and ethical doctor would guarantee any exact results for any procedure... that's just not how things work and it would be less than honest.

That's being said, it is not uncommon for patients to get complete, if not significant relief of their pain shortly after the treatment.

How Long Do The Results Last?

This procedure "impaits" the nerves pain signals... it does not destroy them. Therefore, the results are safe but not completely permanent. But, many patients get relief for 6 months… 12 months…. 18 months for some even longer. The great news is - another procedure can be safely preformed for more relief if necessary.

While we cannot claim this is a complete "permanent cure" . . . it can be a godsend for so many who were in constant pain.

Really... what would it be worth if you could get out of pain for long enough so you could start enjoying your everyday life again?

Would it be worth it to be able to finally get a good night's sleep again?

How about being able to go for a simple walk or just do your basic daily chores without worrying about so much pain?

Is It Safe?

Yes. This procedure has been done countless times and continues to have an excellent safety record. It is minimally invasive and i*s not surgical.*

Who Should Try This Treatment?

RF should be considered after other treatments, such as anti - inflammatory pain medication and physical therapy do not offer good enough results.

RF has also been found effective AFTER back surgery when patient's still feel pain.

The pain after a failed back surgery can be debilitating for some and this procedure may be the only thing that helps give you relief.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain And The "X" Factor

Here is the "X" factor many do not consider that might be the difference between you getting the best possible treatment or not.

Many experts suggest choosing a medical clinic that offers all these treatments and has the proper, most advanced technology all under one roof without the need for a surgical center or hospital.

Major Savings In Time And Costs Of Care?

c For Promising Back Pain Treatment

r Greatly Reduce Even The Most Severe Back Pain...

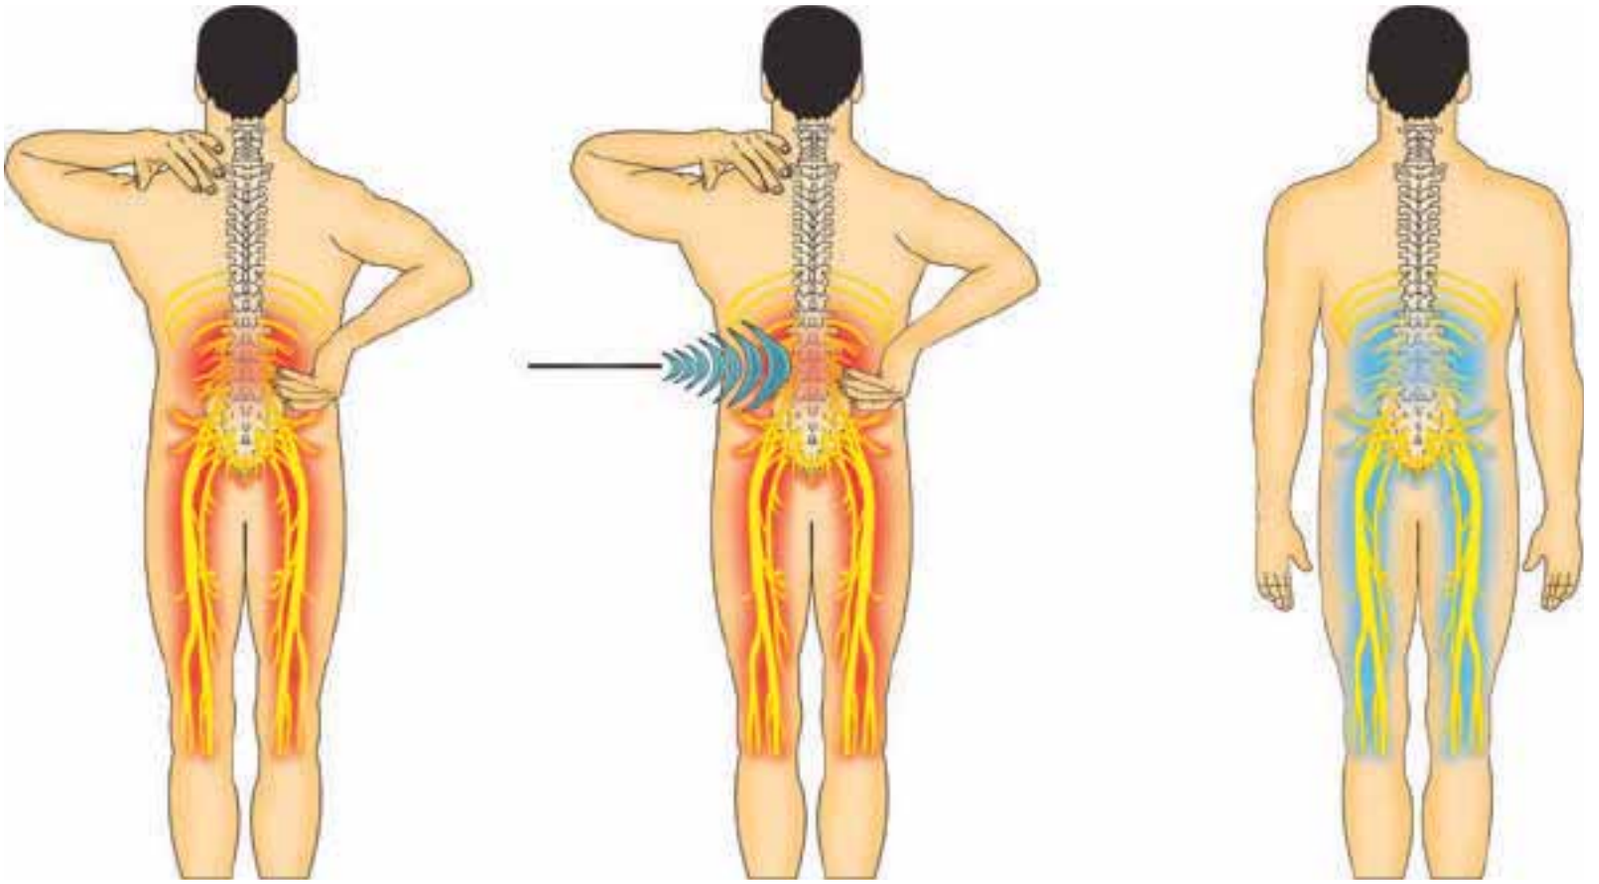
Advanced Treatment Uses Radio Frequencies To Relieve Serious Neck & Back Pain



Science rescues back & neck pain sufferers?: Radio Frequency Waves are used to block the nerve supply to the painful area and may alleviate pain and restore function to many NYC Pain MD's method allows you to avoid expensive hospital or out patient surgi-center facility fees which often run 3 to 4 times the cost of the procedure itself. And you don't have to go through the huge stress and time consuming process of going all over the city to outside centers. All the NYC Pain MD treatments can be done in our in-office procedure suites saving you stress, time and dollars. NYC Pain MD believes this additional "X" factor is one of the reasons so many back pain sufferers travel from all over to be treated at their advanced medical center.

Your Invitation

NYC Pain MD offers limited number of complimentary back and neck pain screenings every month. These screenings are a way for pain sufferers to get some of their questions answered and see if they are candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NYC Pain MD. If you would like complimentary screening, just call 877-503-8540 and tell the scheduling co-ordinator who answers the phone, "I would like a complimentary back pain screening."

The screenings fill up fast every month. If you do not call in time to get one this month, the expert will schedule you for next month.

This screening is at no cost and no obligation.

Many of the treatments offered are covered by many insurance plans an traditional medicare.

"Non Surgical Medical Relief For Spine & Joint Pain"

Michael Stahl David and Stephanie Beatriz in Jessica Thompson's directorial debut. IMAGINATION WORLDWIDE

Stephanie Beatriz wants 'The Light of the Moon' to start conversations

Talking to the "Brooklyn Nine-Nine" actress about her new sexual-assault drama.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
@MetroNewYork
gregory.wakeman@metro.us

After five seasons as Rosa Diaz on Brooklyn Nine-Nine, Stephanie Beatriz was looking to return to her dramatic roots, a world that she had previously loved "living" and felt most at home in.

It was at this point that she read the script for "The Light of the Moon," which tells the story of a woman named Bonnie who struggles in the aftermath of being raped. Beatriz recently told Metro she was immediately terrified by prospect of taking on the role — which is exactly why she immediately decided to take it, too.

But for all the heavy, weighty themes and content in "The Light of the Moon," Beatriz still sees the film as "hopeful," especially in the wake of the #MeToo viral campaign that saw millions of women across the world open up about when they have been sexually assaulted.

"We're all hopeful that things are shifting and changing. There's a sea change happening. We are not satisfied with the way the world is. It doesn't feel fair or safe for so many people in it. And we as humans want to make that change happen. I think all of us are so horrified. When that #MeToo was trending there were so many male friends that were horrified that so many women were coming forward with these stories, and then they were so disappointed that they didn't ask or didn't know that this was happening to the women in their lives."

"All of us as humans have a choice laying in front of us. All of us as humans are really powerful. Even if you don't feel like it. You are. You get to decide, through your daily actions, whether you make this world a better or worse place by how you interact with the people around you. And I think collectively right now we are in a place where a lot of us are saying, 'I refuse to let this stay the way it is. I have to do something. I have to say something. I have to make this place better. For all of us'."

GETTY IMAGES

"Quite a few" of Beatriz's friends are rape survivors, and their use of humor as a defense mechanism and refusal to let it be their "defining characteristic" aided her performance as Bonnie, while the "epic amount of research" and the "smart, natural" writing of first time writer and director Jessica Thompson meant that Beatriz always felt confident enough to take risks with the character, too.

These risks are plainly evident throughout "The Light of the Moon," which was the 2017 SxSW Audience Award Winner in the Narrative Feature Competition and takes a humanistic, resonant, and constantly captivating look at such a harrowing experience. In the wake of the #MeToo viral campaign and the various allegations made against Harvey Weinstein and James Toback, "The Light Of The Moon's" plot feels particularly timely, and Beatriz is hopeful that it will contribute to the discussion and make people believe "it is possible to create change in our world, and our global culture."

"I want people to walk away feeling like they have a jumping off point to have more conversations about this in maybe a way that they didn't before. That's another amazing thing that film and television can do it can make people talk about things that they didn't even know they were supposed to talk about. You get to talk about what you thought about it, how it affected you, how you felt, and hopefully this will start a lot of conversations."

"The Light of the Moon" screens at New York City's IFC Center from Wednesday Nov. 1 and will be released later in the month in Los Angeles, Houston and Seattle.

Tobin Bell talks "Saw"'s impact on the horror genre.
ALL PHOTOS LIONSGATE

Scratch the seven-year itch with the eighth installment of 'Saw'

Just when you thought scary movie season was behind you comes "Jigsaw."

GREGORY WAKEMAN
@MetroNewYork
gregory.wakeman@metro.us

Tobin Bell played the terrifying torturer in the seven "Saw" movies made between 2004 and 2010, but then realized it was time to take a break.

"It's actually the only franchise to do a film a year for seven years," he tells us. "But it's a different world today — my sense is that we're going to attract an entire new group of horror fans."

And what's going to be the bait? His character — John Kramer, AKA Jigsaw — who he describes as "part philosopher, part theologian, part mechanical engineer, trained architect, avid reader, someone interested in so many things that there are really no limits." You know, a 'swipe right' kinda guy. Until you meet up for that first date and he traps you in your worst nightmare, placing you in a fight for your life (spoiler alert: very unlikely you'll make it alive to attend date number two).

"One of the things I love about 'Saw' films is that you don't necessarily get what you see," Tobin shares (with a truth that also applies to online dating). "You see things happen and it plays a game with your mind. It's been that way since the beginning. If John Kramer is anything he's a magician, and he's been since he got up off the floor in the first film. I think fans will find some pretty amazing surprises, and that's pretty much all I can tell you."

Again, are we talking about "Jigsaw" … or Tinder?

"The horror genre has been sort of the weak sister of Hollywood traditionally, through the '40s, '50s and '60s, because not enough emphasis was put on the script," Bell continues. "It was enough to just have scares, and things of that nature. What 'Saw' did was introduce some concept." And the concept explodes in the terrifying twists of this eighth iteration.

Of course "Jigsaw's" main job is to scare, and in an era when the gap between television and film has never been tighter, and box office numbers are rapidly decreasing, Bell insists that this is a rare modern release that needs to be seen as part of an audience in the dark of a cinema in order to fully be experienced.

He's not a 'Netflix and chill' 75-year-old after all.

So if you're looking for a fright, we recommend you do so in a public place, and check out "Jigsaw" in cinemas now.

things to do

Here's where fans can fuel up along the NYC marathon route this Sunday.

KATE MOONEY
@yatinbrooklyn
kate.mooney@metro.us

This Sunday, more than 50,000 runners will compete in the New York City Marathon. If you're not one of them, you can still take part in the annual race day, which has become somewhat of a city-wide holiday, by cheering them on. Maybe you'll even get inspired to train for next year's. The New York Road Runners have suggested some of the best spots to watch along the route as the racers make the 26.2 mile-trek across all five boroughs. We've paired them with tips on where to fuel up with a coffee, beer, or a meal nearby your sidewalk perch. Millions are expected to turn out Sunday to watch, so it's a good idea to arrive early and stake out a spot.

Fourth Ave, Brooklyn, Miles 2-4
Ride the R train down to Bay Ridge (exit between Bay Ridge Ave and 95th St) to catch runners as they exit the Verrazano-Narrows bridge and speed through Miles 2-4 down Fourth Ave. The race has a staggered start, with the first group setting off from Staten Island at 8:30 a.m., so this watchpoint is for the earlyrisers. Grab coffee and pastries at Little Cupcake Bakeshop (9102 3rd Ave), and find post-race craft brews and bar bites (pierogis, wings) at Lock Yard beer garden (9221 5th Ave).

Williamsburg and Greenpoint, Miles 10-13
The last few miles in Brooklyn takes runners from South Williamsburg up to Greenpoint before they cross the Pulaski Bridge into Queens. Take the J to Marcy Ave. and watch along Bedford Ave., followed by brunch at Baby's All Right (146 Broadway Ave). Or, ride the G to Greenpoint Ave. where you can get your caffeine fix at Upright Coffee (860 Manhattan Ave.) followed by beers and Polish comfort food at Karczma (136 Greenpoint Ave.) or pizzas at Paulie Gee's (60 Greenpoint Ave).

Pulaski Bridge, Mile 13.1
Welcome marathoners to Queens — and the midpoint of the race — at the foot of the Pulaski Bridge in Long Island City (7 to Vernon-Jackson, or G to 21 Street-Van Alst). Find coffee at Sweetleaf (10-93 Jackson Ave.) and libations and pub grub at Alewife (5-14 51st Ave.).

First Ave, Manhattan, Miles 16-18
Stake out a spot on First Ave. between E. 60th St. and 96th St. on the Upper East Side to greet runners as they come off the Queensboro Bridge and into Manhattan. Perk up with Gregory's Coffee (1273 First Ave.) grab tacos and margs at Maya (1191 First Ave.).

Watching the marathon sure makes ya hungry.

Mott Haven, Mile 20 block party
Just as runners begin to hit the notorious "wall" at mile 20, they'll get a pick-me-up at this epic block party in the Bronx at 135th St. and Alexander Ave., with DJs, a drumline and more. Take the 6 to Brook Ave. to join in the excitement, then dine on Oaxacan-based eats at La Morada (308 Willis Ave.) or kick back at neighborhood pub Mott Haven Bar & Grill (1 Bruckner Blvd).

Columbus Circle
Take the A, C, B, D or 1 train to Columbus Circle to catch runners before they cross the finish line in Central Park at 67th St. and West Dr. You have no end to food and drink options here, but we think ramen and sake at Ippudo Westside (321 W. 5th St) will do the trick. For a spot at the finish line, buy advance tickets at tcsnycmarathon.org.

6 PLACES TO CARBO-LOAD BEFORE AND AFTER THE MARATHON

JESSICA HIRSCH

Church & Dey

For the ultimate pre-marathon carbo load, you can't beat unlimited. Head into Church & Dey in the Millennium Hilton New York Downtown for their Pasta Fuel Up promotion from Nov. 3-5: four pasta dishes like tagliatelle with seasonal veggies and spicy ricotta, all for $25. Feeling sleepy? Room rates start at $269 over the marathon weekend.

55 Church St., Tribeca

The Sosta

Just what marathoners want: pasta in a hurry. Fast-casual Italian spot The Sosta is offering two specials: On Nov. 3-4, runners and their guest get 25 percent off their meal with proof of registration. On the day of the race, finishers get a free bowl of pasta and a beer as congratulations.

186 Mott St., NoLita

Sola Pasta Bar

To fuel your 26.2-mile run, get to Sola Pasta Bar for its $26.20 specials from Nov. 3-5. Chef Massimo Sola, who earned a Michelin star for his restaurant in Italy, is offering the Marathon Pasta & Veggies (tagliatelle al ragù and kale salad) or the Marathon Pasta & Fruit (trofie pasta al pesto and fruit salad).

330 West Broadway, Tribeca

FACEBOOK

Davio's Northern Italian Steakhouse

Bring your marathon badge to Davio's Northern Italian Steakhouse during dinner from Nov. 3-5 for their Carbo Load Menu. The three-course prix fixe starts with a choice of salad and two pasta dishes like tagliatelle bolognese or hand-rolled gnocchi. The menu is $42 and available with gluten-free or whole-wheat pasta.

447 Lexington Ave., Midtown

Altamarea Group

To congratulate marathoners on their achievement, chef Michael White's restaurants including Osteria Morini, Nicoletta, Ai Fiori, Ristorante Morini and Vaucluse are offering 50 percent off any pasta dish on the menu after the race on Nov. 5. Just flash your finish line swag to your waiter before placing your order.

EVAN SUNG

Great Northern Food Hall

Carbs aren't just for before the race — you'll need them for recovery, too. From Nov. 5-7, runners can show their medal at Great Northern Food Hall to receive half off all carbs — even beer! Grab one of Claus Meyer's signature smorrebrod (traditional Nordic open-faced sandwich), as well as flatbreads, pastries and sandwiches.

89 E. 42nd St., Grand Central

A new way to appreciate beer

The Cellar at Treadwell Park gives beer the same tasting room treatment as wine and cocktails.

EVA KIS
@thisiskis
eva.kis@metro.us

In the world of alcoholic beverages, beer has been shortchanged. Brewers use equally complex techniques as winemakers and distilleries to create unique and endlessly variable beers — so why have we just been pounding pints in loud sports bars?

For connoisseurs of beer, there's now The Cellar at Treadwell Park, an intimate new Upper East Side tasting room headed up by certified cicerone (the sommeliers of beer) Anne Becerra.

"We love the energy of a sports bar, but every once in a while you want to have a little bit of an intimate experience and focus on the beer that you're drinking," says Becerra, who will be behind the Cellar's bar. "It's a great little space for when people want to get away from all the craziness and have a good conversation over some really unique beers."

Modeled after vintage European wine cellars and lambic breweries, the small but stately beer reserve tasting room is hidden in the basement and seats just 10, so access is by reservation only.

There are nods to beer history and great brewers all over the space. A framed copy of the German purity law Reinheitsgebot hangs on the wall; the vintage copper plates (Treadwell's full menu is served downstairs) come from an English pub; a vintage Orval Clock from one of Belgium's great Trappist breweries keeps time; a vintage U.S. government poster advertises beer jobs after the repeal of Prohibition; and books from famous beer writers line the shelves.

The 51 beers on the reserve list come from all over the world.

Once you settle into the leather banquette, Becerra has curated a list of over 50 of the rarest brews in the world, from cask-conditioned ales to rare imports, at a wide range of price points.

There's Ale Apothecary Sahalie, a barrel-aged sour from Oregon ($62 for a bottle) and Sinebrychoff Koff Porter, a 2009 Baltic porter from Finland from $15.

Each brew gets its own page in the menu highlighting the brewing processes and ingredients that make them more valuable. She also plans to continue aging some bottle-conditioned beers for wine-style side-by-side tastings.

Instead of pints, the beers are served in special Spiegelau glassware "to appreciate every facet, from the color to the aroma to the mouthfeel, finish, you name it."

Calling the Cellar "a clubhouse for beer," Becerra wants the space to reward curiosity and foster connections, both with the bartender ("to feel like you're there with a friend") and between beer lovers.

"I'm excited to see how that room is going to evolve and what people will get excited about and how they're gonna wanna use it," she says. "Having a space like the Cellar is fun; it makes you appreciate what's in your glass."

The Cellar at Treadwell Park is located at 1125 First Ave. For reservations, call 212-832-4612 or visit treadwellpark.com

YOUR WEEKEND STARTS NOW

MAGIC

At the Illusionist's Table

Now that's dinner and a show: three courses, a cocktail and a performance at one of the city's hottest venues for under $200. At the Illusionist's Table, opening this week, is the newest show at the McKittrick Hotel (home to Sleep No More) and brings together fine dining and feats of mentalism and storytelling by the mysterious Scott Silven.
Through Jan. 14, McKittrick Hotel, 542 W. 27th St., $145-$175, mckittrickhotel.com

THEATER

Of Thee I Sing!

Make fun of politics with witty, musical satire? Don't mind if we do! Each year, MasterVoices puts together a one-night-only concert with high-profile stars, and this year's happens to be "Of Thee I Sing!" — a Gershwin musical about the flawed electoral process. The cast includes Bryce Pinkham ("Gentleman's Guide to Love and Murder") and Denee Benton ("Great Comet").
Nov. 2, 7 p.m., Carnegie Hall, 57th St. at Seventh Ave., $20-$155, carnegiehall.org

FUN

Canstruction

With the eclectic event now celebrating its 25th year, you can expect Canstruction New York to have its unique brand of can architecture down to, well, an art. This year, 27 teams will gather at Brookfield Place in the Financial District to create competing constructs entirely out of donated cans (about 64,000 pounds, to be exact). Nov. 2-15, 230 Vesey St., Free, canstruction.org

Big Apple Circus

For its 40th season, the Big Apple Circus returns after a daring high-wire act where it nearly said good-bye forever but ultimately landed new ownership — good news for many families who have made it part of their holiday tradition. In addition to the clowns, acrobats, goofy dogs and other jokesters and daredevils you'd expect, this year introduces Circus of the Senses: performances catering to those with sensory challenges.
Nov. 2-Jan. 7, Big Apple Circus Tent at Damrosch Park, 60 Lincoln Center Plaza, $37.50-$129, bigapplecircus.com

These days, we're all walking around with pretty high-tech phone cameras that make us feel like pro photographers (especially when you start adding filters), but Canon is out to prove how much of a difference the real thing can make with the #ShootForGreatness Ultimate Photo Park. It's free to play around in artist-curated environments to get the perfect Instagram-worthy shots, especially when staged and taken by actual pros on the new Canon EOS Rebel T7i.
Nov. 2-3, 82 Gansevoort St., Free, canon.splashthat.com

DISASTER RELIEF

A Charitable Night

There's a lot of heavy stuff going on in the world, and sometimes it's hard to figure out what you can do. Here's one answer: a night of Latin cuisine, cocktails, raffles, a silent auction and live music where you can enjoy yourself while supporting our fellow Americans in Puerto Rico who are still displaced, hungry and in need of help after an intense hurricane season.
Nov. 3, 5:30-8 p.m., NeueHouse Madison Square, 110 E. 25th St., $45-$80, tainasunidas.org

FOOD

New York Taste

Give that palate a good cleanse in preparation for one of the city's most popular all-you-can-eat-and-drink events, returning next Monday with the chance to sample more than 40 bars and restaurants curated by New York Magazine, ranging from Clover Club, Pegu Club and Megu to DO Cookie Dough Confections, Du's Donuts and Rotisserie Georgette. VIPs get early access, entry to a special lounge and a luxury gift bag.
Nov. 6, 6-9 p.m., The Waterfront, 269 11th Ave., $108.88-$212.31, nymag.com/taste

The Rink at Brookfield Place

One of the city's newer ice skating rinks returns this week (weather permitting), and you can be among the first to get in some actual skating without bumping elbows if you go before the buzz gets out. The Rink at Brookfield Place offers 90-minute sessions at $15, plus $5 to rent skates, as well as classes and hockey lessons. Its official opening event is Dec. 3 with a live show and the chance to skate with winter Olympians.

THE COUNTDOWN TO Black Friday WINDOW SALE

November 1st to November 24th only!

Our biggest dollar discount and best financing of the year ends ON Black Friday.

To protect your home against leaking and cold drafts, strong windows and patio doors will be one of the most important home improvements you can make BEFORE the winter.

Renewal by Andersen
WINDOW REPLACEMENT
an Andersen Company

TAKE $330 OFF every window[1]

TAKE $900 OFF every patio door[1]

PLUS NO Money Down NO Payments NO Interest for 2 full years[1]

Valid on initial visit only – not to be combined with any other offer. Minimum purchase of 4 or more windows and/or patio doors at time of initial visit.
Financing provided by third parties and is subject to credit requirements. Interest accrues during the promotional period but all interest is waived if the purchase amount is paid in full within 24 months.

We won't let new windows impact your holiday spending.
Why? Because you won't pay anything until November 2019. Breathe easier this holiday season with no money down, no payments and no interest for two whole years.[1]

Don't take a chance on a vinyl window.
Vinyl windows can warp, leak and cause drafts, so trusting a poor-quality vinyl window is a poor choice. Our window's Fibrex® composite material is twice as strong as vinyl.

You've got enough on your plate this time of year; we've got this.
We build, sell, install and warrant all of our windows; that means there's no middleman to deal with, and as the full-service replacement window division of Andersen, we're about as trustworthy as you can get.

Pretty in pink

Komodo National Park is prettyin pink. GETTY IMAGES

Millennial pink may be trendy, but these places were rockin' their pink hues first.

Fodor's Travel

Balos Bay

Legend has it that the sand at this Greek beach is pink due to the blood of thousands of Turks who died in battle. In reality, it's the abundance of crushed seashells that make the hidden lagoon on this picturesque Crete outpost so pink. The cliff views are surreal and there's an ancient Venetian castle nearby. The waters are warm, shallow, and family-friendly, but go early in the morning to avoid crowds. There are no amenities, so bring your own food and water and shade umbrellas if needed.

Pekelemeer Lake

The shocking pink waters of Pekelmeer Lake in Bonaire pop out of the blue like a mirage and are flanked by blindingly white mountains of salt that look like snow. The water is colored by the abundance of tiny brine shrimp that flourish within them. These shrimp attract more pink delights- flocks of Caribbean flamingos that number in the thousands and congregate to feast on the tiny crustaceans.

Lake Hillier

While most foreigners who make the giant leap across the ocean to explore Australia come to see the outback and the Great Barrier Reef, the breath-taking natural beauty of Western Australia is nothing to shake a stick at. Lake Hillier is a perfect example of Western Australia's lesser-known hidden gems; the pink salt water in this lake looks like something out of a fairy tale! Among other microorganisms, researchers attribute the bubblegum color of the lake to a type of micro-algae that thrives in salty conditions called dunaliella salina. The rare algae produce a pinkish-red dye to help it to better absorb sunlight under the water.

Pink Sands Beach

With the laid-back lifestyle, aquamarine-colored waters and famous Junkanoo carnival festivals, we know we don't need to give you another excuse to book a trip to the beautiful Bahamas. But, we've got one for you anyway: Harbour Island boasts powdery pale pink sands made from broken pieces of coral and tiny-shelled creatures (foraminifera). Although the sand may be a lighter shade of pink than some of the other contenders on this list, Pink Sands Beach has been named one of the prettiest beaches in the Caribbean. The best time to view the sand's rosy hue is at sundown, or at low tide. Bring your snorkel; the water is calm and the reef is steps from the beach.

Las Salinas de Torrevieja

As it turns out, Australia isn't the only one with Kool-Aid color lakes. For similar biological reasons as Lake Hillier (high salt content and the micro-organisms that thrive in it), Valencia's Las Salinasde Torrevieja has a pink lake of its very own, and this one is home to 2,000 flamingos.

While the Spanish lake and the wildlife are absolutely stunning, locals know an even better secret; the pink lake in Spain's Las Salinas de Torrevieja has all the therapeutic properties of a natural spa. Treat yourself to a moisturizing mud bath and facemask and let it dry while you take in some sun. Rinse off with a soothing swim in the pink lake, the salt makes you almost as buoyant as in the Dead Sea, adding to the overall relaxation.

Pink Beach (Pantai Merah)

The UNESCO World Heritage Site of Komodo National Park in Indonesia is the perfect stopover for nature lovers visiting Indonesia. Here, the soft, blushing sand and crystal-clear waters make it the ideal place to snap some envy-inducing vacation photos before delving into world-class snorkeling along the reef. Yet again, our microscopic friends (foraminifera) are responsible for the dazzling pink sands on this beach. These tiny organisms turn the coral red, and when red coral particles crumble off into the sea, they mix with the white sand, and just like magic, it morphs into a pretty pink beach.

Lake Hillier, Western Australia WIKIMEDIA

Hutt Lagoon

The Magenta ponds near Perth, Australia aren't exactly the spot to visit for your next beach vacation, but they are stunning to view from an airplane. As the largest Beta-Carotene farm on earth, Hutt Lagoon uses these salty pink algae ponds to manufacture vitamin supplements, pill casings, and food dye, among other things.

You may not have heard of Beta-Carotene but you've surely consumed it. It's the scientific name for the brightly colored pigment that gives vegetables such as carrots and sweet potatoes their vibrant shades of orange and red. Not only is it used as an organic food coloring agent, but also when ingested, beta-carotene turns into vitamin A, which is great for your skin and eyesight.

Horseshoe Bay Beach

As one of Bermuda's most iconic tourist destinations, Horseshoe Bay Beach is a must-see for its picturesque coastline views, turquoise-colored water, and you guessed it, pink sand.

Southside beaches between Horseshoe Bay and Warwick Long Bay are blessed with pastel pink sand from tiny pieces of foraminifera shells. As a treasured part of Bermuda's natural beauty, it's actually illegal to take any sand off the beach, but they do sell it in shops in souvenir bottles.

Often touted as one of the most beautiful beaches in the world, this crescent strip is very popular with cruise visitors, so get there early to snag a prime spot. Nearby coves make for the excellent calm water swim spots, and the waters are full of vibrant blue parrotfish, so bring a snorkel.

Pink Sand Beach

Many of Barbuda's beaches turn a cotton candy hue when the conditions are right, like Pink Beach and Low Bay's 17-mile stretch of absolutely pristine heaven. When the sea swells are very strong, they crush the millions of minuscule pink foraminifera shells until they carpet the sand. In fact, they can be so numerous that you'll hear a distinct tikka-tikka-tikka sound as they collide on their slide-and-tumble journey back into the sea when the waves recede.

Unusual even by Dutch standards

Explore Amsterdam's most unique restaurants (and we don't mean lacing dishes with pot).

Fodor's Travel

The Dutch have a saying: "Just act normal, that's already crazy enough." It's true of unusual places to eat in this historic city, where the urge to be different comes without pretense. Crazy-different is good, especially when it comes to food.

De Pindakaaswinkel specializes in peanut butter. FACEBOOK

De Pindakaaswinkel

Is peanut butter your jam? Meet the world's first store dedicated only to PB. Sample 10 varieties of freshly ground, all-natural peanut butter blended with coconut oil and sea salt, spiked with flavours like date, coffee, raisin-fennel and chilli pepper-lemongrass. The caramel sea salt and white chocolate are ridiculously good. Pick up a Pindabaas (roughly translated as Peanut Boss) tee to show your bread spread allegiance.

The Avocado Show

Generation avocado can't resist this place in the trendy De Pijp hood, which brags "the time is ripe" for an all-things avocado restaurant. Everything on the menu, broken down into "fancy" and "schmancy" sides, is made with the on-trend fruit and is plated with such flair, you'll feed your Instagram before yourself. The superstar is the Bun Burger, an avocado split in half vertically, sandwiching a generous scoop of ossenworst, Dutch smoky raw beef sausage (it's delicious). The room is tiny, so expect to line up no matter when you go. You'll meet lots of like-minded avocado-lovers while you wait.

Instock

This restaurant turns the not-so-pretty fruits and veggies, day-old bread, and surplus meat and fish about to be pitched by a major Amsterdam grocery store chain into delicious meals. They even brew their own beer from unloved potatoes. With about a third of food being wasted worldwide, here's a restaurant that puts its mouth is. It's located in the once-derelict and now-reborn Czaar Peterstraat central neighborhood of Amsterdam's Eastern Docklands.

De Frietsteeg

Here's a bold statement: best frites in a city that shows serious love to the French fry. With two coffee shops filled with weed-consuming patrons as neighbors, you know they have to up their game at tiny, hole-in-the-wall joint De Frietsteeg in the central 9 Small Streets (De 9 Straatjes) neighborhood. The chips are twice fried to order, lightly salted, and served in a paper cone with a choice of more than 20 sauces generously glopped on top.

Pllek

Part of the transformation of former massive shipbuilding complex NDSM in arty, post-industrial Amsterdam Noord, Pllek is a seriously cool curved space built from used shipping containers. Hipper that it looks, it also has good food and quick, helpful service, even when packed, which is often the case. Get a table upstairs for the best view out the massive picture window (you may spot a passing cruise ship) or sit at a picnic table on the small beach out front. Get there by a short, free ferry ride across the IJ (pronounced "eye") River.\

There's much to do at the NDSM site, including artists' collectives, festivals, and music. Drop in at The IJ-kantine, a restaurant-bar in the former company canteen that runs old black-and-white films of ships being built and launched at the factory.

Bierfabriek

If you're booking a table at Bierfabriek, you better love beer and chicken. That's what this pared-down, industrial-vibe restaurantdoes best: juicy, smoky, charcoal-rotisserie free-range chicken with excellent fries and three varieties of in-house-brewed beer: Rosso, Nero, or unfiltered Purr pilsner. Peanuts in the shell to shuck and chuck on the floor makes it feel like a 1980s roadhouse. True beer nuts will want to book a beer tap table, where you pour your own.

Kapitein Zeppos

It's a bit hard to find, but worth the hunt to dine in Amsterdam's central jewellery district down a romantic alley underneath a cool musical-note neon clock. Built in a former stables and cigar factory, this restaurant is named for a quirky '60s Flemish TV series hero described as "a mix of 007 and Batman." Dutch dishes dominate, but there's also Asian and Portuguese fare. After dinner, the speakeasy-like Claire's Ballroom upstairs has live music, especially jazz, and theatrical performances.

Two points least important for Rangers after Tribeca tragedy

The tragic events that transpired on Chambers Street were fresh in the minds of the Blueshirts during their game against the Golden Knights.

Like it has throughout the 20th and 21st centuries, sports rarely stop regardless of current events. That was no different on Tuesday night when the New York Rangers had to play a hockey game against the Vegas Golden Knights just hours after eight people were killed and another 11 were injured when a man drove a pickup truck down the bike path of the West Side Highway in Lower Manhattan in what was later deemed to be an act of terror.

Tragedies like these, which have happened all too often in the past few years, put things into perspective, making the Rangers' tough start to the 2017-18 season and Tuesday night's game against the expansion Knights seem oh so trivial.

The NHL's newest franchise is no stranger to dealing with moments like this despite their expansion status after a lone gunman killed 59 and injured over 400 others after firing on a crowd from the 32nd floor of the Mandalay Bay Hotel and Casino on Oct. 1.

But sports have a tendency to heal and the Rangers were able to get the minds of 17,294 patrons at Madison Square Garden away from the real world for two-and-a-half hours as they defeated Vegas, 6-4, to pick up their second-straight win to end their month on a much-needed high note after starting the season 2-7-2.

While the Blueshirts put in a solid effort against a Golden Knights team that saw their five-game winning streak snapped on Monday night by the Islanders, the events of what transpired just a few hours earlier on Chambers Street were still fresh in their mind.

"A lot of emotion with what happened in Tribeca. A lot of our players live there," head coach Alain Vigneault said. "I won't name names, but I heard a couple of guys talking about it before the game. They were talking about how we have to put this together and get going … it was an emotional moment with what happened today, but our guys handled it well."

They did just that, overturning a 4-2 deficit by scoring four unanswered goals in the third period, ensuring that New Yorkers went home with something to smile about.

"It didn't really matter who scored, I'm super happy that we got the win, especially with the situation from earlier today," center Mika Zibanejad, who did score in the third period, said. "Our thoughts and prayers go out to all of the families. It's a horrible, horrible thing. We talked about that; it was bigger than the two points today. We were trying to play for the whole city and for all of the families involved, and we were able to do that."

The events hit a little too close to home for star goaltender Henrik Lundqvist, who was tasked to prepare for a game he would start despite his family living near the area.

"It was emotional for me before the game. I talked to the group a little bit about the importance of the game," he said. "For me, my family is in that area every day and coming to the game not knowing if they were safe or not, it was not a good feeling."

They were indeed safe as Lundqvist made 30 saves on the night in the win.

"It was about time to get a win here, especially at home on a day like this where maybe hockey is not that important," Mats Zuccarello, who tallied one of the goals, said. "We wanted to give everyone a good feeling."

Giants insist everything is fine despite mounting problems

Even with suspensions and a terrible 1-6 start, some members of Big Blue believe all is well.

KRISTIAN DYER
@KristianRDyer
sports@metro.us

There is no locker room fracture and head coach Ben McAdoo has not lost the team, so is the message and talking points from the New York Giants as they returned back from a week off.

The Giants are 1-6, a season of so much promise now heading toward likely firings and big changes. Coming off the bye week, things don't appear to be getting much better as cornerback Janoris Jenkins is now suspended and fellow cornerback Eli Apple did not appear at practice when the team reconvened on Monday for the second half of the season.

The locker room says they're not divided or split, even as the team seems to be slipping into some limited chaos. Keep in mind that a couple of weeks ago, Dominique Rodgers-Cromartie, yet another cornerback, was suspended by the team.

So that is now two team suspensions in just the span of a couple of weeks.

"Stuff happens. I don't look at it as that. There are two different things that happened with the two suspensions that happened this year," safety Landon Collins said. "Like I said, things happen within the organization that you have to just face and coach just has to keep his foot down. If he's going to keep his foot down and be stern, you have to just follow the rules."

New York Giants head coach Ben McAdoo has had a nightmare start to the 2017 NFL season. GETTY IMAGES

The irony of the suspensions and issues off the field with the members of the secondary is that this wasn't supposed to be the volatile group within the locker room. The thought all along was that the wide receiver group, featuring unique personalities in Odell Beckham Jr. and Brandon Marshall, were the morning-line favorites to have a meltdown.

The suspension is another black eye in a year that is fast becoming forgettable for the Giants.

Rodgers-Cromartie said that McAdoo still has the respect of the team — "it would be haywire, a lot of chaos" if the head coach had, in fact, lost his players. As for his own suspension a couple weeks ago, Rodgers-Cromartie said that he apologized to the team and tried to move on.

"I apologized," Rodgers-Cromartie said. "But for the most part, I just thanked them for not allowing a situation that really got out of control that really shouldn't have even got like that not affect all of this and still go out there and play. I told them I was sorry and I'm glad to be back and all of them accepted that."

BIOTRIAL

NFL power rankings | by Luke Miller

No. 1

Eagles
7-1 (W vs. SF)

The Eagles got reinforcements ahead of Tuesday's trade deadline, sending a fourth round pick to Miami for running back Jay Ajayi. Most expected the Eagles to be looking for help at left tackle after Jason Peters injury, but it's clear they're are doubling down on their early success.

No. 2

Patriots
6-2 (W vs. LAC)

The Patriots lead the league in total yardage, the only team averaging more than 400 yards per game, but it's not translating into touchdowns. The Pats rank just seventh in average points scored, and a big reason is settling for field goals. The Patriots have kicked four more field goals (11) between 20-29 yards than any other team.

No. 3

Steelers
6-2 (W vs. DET)

The Steelers set the bar for bend-but-don't-quite-break defenses this week, allowing Matthew Stafford to throw for 423 yards, but limiting them to five field goals. What the Lions couldn't do up close, the Steelers did from a distance, sending JuJu Smith-Schuster 97 yards to the endzone on his way to a seven catch, 193-yard game.

No. 4

Vikings
6-2 (W vs. CLE)

The Vikings enter their bye with most of the interesting chatter settling around Teddy Bridgewater, reportedly ready to return to playing for the first time since suffering a knee injury in practice before the 2016 season. The question that needs to be asked: do the Vikings mess with a good thing by returning to their franchise QB?

No. 5

Saints
5-2 (W vs. CHI)

The Saints survived two Mark Ingram fumbles in this win. It was an unusual day for Ingram, whose three lost fumbles in 2017 are already a career high. The Saints sit only a game ahead of Atlanta but point differentials of plus-46 for the Saints, plus-six for the Panthers give a better idea of how these teams have performed thus far.

No. 6

Chiefs
6-2 (W vs. DEN)

With Tyreek Hill and Kareem Hunt shut down by the Denver defense, the Chiefs turned to Travis Kelce, catching half of the team's 14 completions and accounting for 133 of their 202 passing yards. Marcus Peters had an INT, and ripped off a fumble return for a score.

No. 7

Rams
5-2 (BYE)

The Rams spent their bye week falling to second place in the division as the Seahawks matched their win total in a dramatic shootout with Houston. That's got to have them chomping at the bit for their next game against the Giants, equally refreshed after a bye too.

No. 8

Bills
5-2 (W vs. OAK)

Buffalo has forced at least three turnovers in four straight games. The Bills were active this week, trading defensive tackle Marcell Dareus to Jacksonville while trading for Kelvin Benjamin from the Panthers. They're now 4-0 at home but have to hit the road to face the Jets.

No. 9

Seahawks
5-2 (W vs. HOU)

This game proved Russell Wilson can do everything on his own, but with Duane Brown arriving to play left tackle, the Seahawks hope he won't keep having to. Wilson threw for 452 yards and four touchdowns in the wild victory over Houston.

No. 10

Panthers
5-3 (W vs. TAM)

The Panthers won for the first time in three weeks on the play of their defense, which allowed no touchdowns for the second straight week. Even in victory the Panthers' offense continued to struggle, averaging 4.8 yards per pass and 3.2 yards per rush.

Best of the rest

Taurus An unexpected turn of events will leave you wondering what to do next. If you gather proper information, you'll realize you have nothing to worry about.

Gemini Make a big splash if you want to be noticed. Your ability to adapt to whatever comes your way will give you a competitive edge. Romance is in the stars.

Cancer A steady pace will get you where you want to go. Discipline, hard work and the willingness to help others will help you counter any negativity you feel or face.

Leo Don't let an opportunity pass you by just because you are being stubborn. Work around your differences. A personal change will be rewarding.

Virgo Don't bend if someone tries to goad you into making a donation or signing a deal. Negotiate on your own behalf. Ask pertinent questions before you proceed.

Libra Change is inevitable. Discipline will be required to manipulate a situation to your liking. Relationships, when handled properly, will stabilize. Keep the peace.

Scorpio Push hard to bring about the changes that will help you get ahead at work or where your personal finances are concerned. Persistence will pay off in the end.

Sagittarius Home improvements, physical alterations and stabilizing personal elements are favored. Make love and romance a priority. Pitch in and help a cause you care about.

Capricorn An emotional disturbance could result in problems with a friend or neighbor. Don't do something you'll regret when you should be concentrating on getting ahead.

Aquarius If you love someone, share your feelings. A joint venture can change the way you earn your keep. Embrace new beginnings and partnerships that offer stability.

Pisces An unexpected change will turn out to be a blessing. Embrace what comes your way. Going against the current will cause a stalemate. EUGENIA LAST
